"An inspiring true story of a boy genius. "Plowing a potato field in 1920, a 14-year-old farm boy from Idaho saw in the parallel rows of overturned earth a way to make pictures fly through the air. This boy was not a magician; he was a scientific genius and just eight years later he made his brainstorm in the potato field a reality by transmitting the world's first television image. This fascinating picture-book biography of Philo Farnsworth covers his early interest in machines and electricity, leading up to how he put it all together in one of the greatest inventions of the 20th century. The author's afterword discusses the lawsuit Farnsworth waged and won against RCA when his high school science teacher testified that Philo's invention of television was years before RCA's."

A guide to help teachers reach struggling readers offers practical strategies, classroom skills, and activities.

Background: Teachers who work with English as a Second Language (ESL) students, struggle with promoting discussion during guided reading. When ESL students are asked comprehension questions during group discussions and throughout the reading of a book, often teachers receive minimal feedback. Purpose: The purpose of this research is to identify effective discussion strategies that may help ESL students contribute to meaningful class discussions about their reading. Setting: The students in the research attended a public elementary school in a suburban neighborhood in northeastern United States. The research took place in a third grade classroom for approximately one month. Study Sample: The students in the research were two boys and two girls in third grade. They participated in the school's ESL program. Intervention: Anticipation guides were implemented during guided reading twice. Four statements were created on sheets of paper that related to the story with columns for students to decide whether they agreed or disagreed. Strategies were modeled to illustrate how students could respond to the first statement and how they could make connections to previous experiences. Students recorded their reactions to the statements, read the book, and had opportunities to discuss their responses. Research Design: Experimental. Data Collection and Analysis: The data collection includes a teacher survey and interview, guided reading pre & post observation notes, pre & post group discussion checklists, and student interviews. Findings: Anticipation guides brought forth high levels of discussion and were appreciated by the students, based on the student interviews and post strategy observation. It was easy for students to state their opinions on the statements included in the guides and refer back to them to discuss their reasons for agreeing or disagreeing. Conclusion: To narrow students' learning gaps, strategies that will allow for building background knowledge in students who bring diverse cultural differences should be implemented. Anticipation guides certainly build knowledge, motivation, comprehension, and discussion. Citation: Echevarria, J., & Short, D. (2004/2005). Teacher skills to support English Language Learners.
